Preface

Launching the Surya "Flash" A Journey Across All Branches

It gives us immense pleasure to unveil the very first edition of our school newsletter, The Surya Flash—a vibrant new initiative that will henceforth be released quarterly across all branches of Surya The Global School.

This newsletter is more than a publication; it is a celebration of our collective identity, capturing the spirit, aspirations, and accomplishments of the entire Surya community. It reflects our belief that education extends far beyond the classroom—it lives in the everyday moments of learning, collaboration, creativity, and character-building.

The purpose of The Surya Flash is threefold:

To Reflect – Showcasing the unique culture and achievements of each branch while celebrating the shared values that unite us as one Surya family.

To Engage – Offering a platform for students, educators, and parents to voice ideas, share experiences, and connect across campuses.

To Inspire – Curating content that motivates us to aim higher, think deeper, and nurture the excellence we strive for every day.

As we embark on this literary journey together, our vision is to make The Surya Flash a mirror of our growth and a medium for meaningful storytelling—where every student is a contributor, every teacher a guide, and every page a reflection of passion and progress.

We welcome you to explore this inaugural edition and join us in making this newsletter a lasting tradition—one that connects, celebrates, and uplifts every branch, every voice, and every vision under the Surya banner.

At Surya The Global School, we believe that an educational institution thrives best when it reflects the voices of the community it serves. As a valued stakeholder, if you—our dear parent—wish to share your insights, experiences, or perspectives through a written article, we warmly welcome your contribution.

NOTE FROM ACADAMIC HEAD

Shaping the Future Through Education

Education is the cornerstone of progress, a beacon of hope guiding individuals and societies toward a brighter future. As Academic Head, I have witnessed firsthand the transformative power of education in shaping young minds and preparing them to navigate the complexities of the modern world.

In today's fast-paced, technology-driven era, education must extend beyond textbooks and exams. It should foster critical thinking, creativity, collaboration, and adaptability. The goal is not just to impart knowledge but to cultivate lifelong learners who can innovate, lead, and contribute meaningfully to society.

Our institution has embraced this mission wholeheartedly. Through a balanced curriculum, innovative teaching methodologies, and an emphasis on holistic development, we strive to create a nurturing environment where every student can thrive. From encouraging curiosity in the classroom to instilling values like empathy and resilience, we aim to prepare students for both professional success and personal fulfillment.

As educators, our role is not just to teach but to inspire. We must recognize the unique potential within each learner and provide them with the tools and opportunities to excel. This includes leveraging technology to make learning more interactive and inclusive while also emphasizing the importance of traditional values and ethics.

The path ahead is filled with challenges, but also immense possibilities. As we celebrate the achievements of our students and faculty in this magazine, let us reaffirm our commitment to excellence in education. Together, we can empower the next generation to not only dream big but also to achieve those dreams.

Let us continue to innovate, collaborate, and inspire as we build a brighter future for all.

Warm regards,

ARE WE?

The song of immaculacy

When can we truly call a period the "golden era" for humanity? People often reminisce about the "good old days," but when exactly were they? Was it centuries ago, or after World War II?

Since the Stone Age, humans have struggled—fighting for survival, suffering due to lack of medical advancements, and enduring blind traditions, such as widows being forced to burn alive. Wars spilled rivers of blood, with soldiers often unaware of why they fought. But those were times of the past.

Today, we enjoy air-conditioned rooms, luxurious entertainment, and schools where students are pampered more than educated. We watch cricket with a bucket of popcorn, freely voicing our displeasure. Could our ancestors have imagined such a life? Had we been born just 75 years earlier, we might have fallen to a British bullet or lived in poverty under oppressive royals.

So when did such comforts seep into our lives? What became of Hitler's army or Stalin's rule? We owe our freedom, liberty, and even our luxuries to those who sacrificed their lives for world peace—leaders like Nelson Mandela, John F. Kennedy, and Gandhi, who transcended personal identities to fight for humanity. Their wealth was not of money but of wisdom.

It is our responsibility to carry this peace forward. The great question is—are we? Do our children deserve pandemics, environmental crises, or social and communal riots? Should they bear the burden of advancements that threaten humanity or the relentless pressure of a rat race? No.

True fulfillment lies in expressing our soul, not in impressing others to quench fleeting desires.

Jyothirmayi.

A teacher is first a student, embracing knowledge and growth before guiding others.

Every teacher's heart is the soul of a lifelong learner—a student who remains curious, open-minded, and eager to grow.

Teaching is often described as a journey, it's a journey of continuous development with new challenges, new technologies, and the ever-changing needs of students.

My path to becoming an educator began many years ago, but each day in the classroom feels like a new step in a lifelong adventure. It's not just a job but a meaningful path that profoundly shapes both the teacher and the students.

And being a part of this organization has shaped not only my career but also my outlook on life.

CREATING A WONDER ROOM: TRANSFORMING PRE-PRIMARY CLASSROOMS INTO SPACES OF EXPLORATION

At Surya Global School, it sounds like the teaching approach is designed to provide a holistic foundation for pre-primary children, focusing not only on academic readiness such as pre-reading, writing, and basic numeracy but also on social readiness and emotional preparedness. This combination helps young learners succeed not just in the classroom but in navigating social environments and developing self-regulation skills. It sounds like Surya Global School has created a wonderfully engaging and diverse Wonder room, featuring five distinct corners that focus on different aspects of early childhood development. Each corner can foster specific skills, allowing children to explore different themes in a hands-on, interactive way. Here's an overview of each corner and how it can contribute to a child's learning:

Etiquette corner can teach children essential social and life skills, helping them understand the importance of manners, respect, and communication in daily life. Talk Corner is an excellent space for enhancing language development, communication skills, and self-expression.

Science Corner encourages curiosity and exploration of the natural world, offering children hands-on experiences that introduce scientific concepts in an age-appropriate way.

Kitchen Corner provides an opportunity for sensory exploration and an introduction to life skills like cooking, food preparation, and healthy eating.

Dramatic Corner is a space where children can engage in pretend play, which enhances creativity, emotional expression, and social skills.

The Joy of small wins

In the fast-paced rhythm of daily life, it's easy to prioritize big milestones -the highest grades, major awards or standout performances. However, as a teacher, I've grown to cherish the smaller, quieter victories that unfold in the classroom every day. It could be the moment a hesitant student musters the courage to speak up, a learner finally grasping a concept they've been struggling with, or a group of classmates resolving their differences peacefully. These moments may not seem extraordinary, but their impact is profound. They serve as a reminder that growth is a gradual process, and every step forward matters. These little victories bring immense satisfaction and deserve to be celebrated just as much.

THE MYSTERY OF THE MISSING TOOTHBRUSH

The morning started like any other, but when I went to brush my teeth, my favourite blue car design toothbrush was missing! I searched everywhere but couldn't find it. I asked my parents, but they hadn't seen it, and my little brother acted clueless.

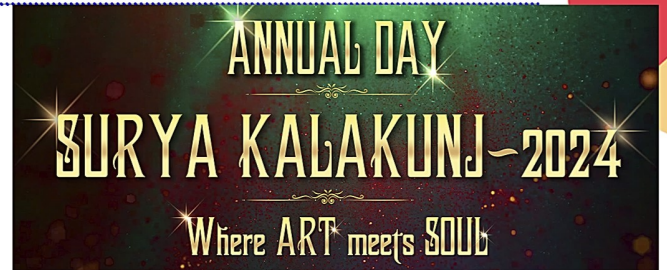

Determined to solve the mystery, I recalled my steps from the night before and noticed a purple smudge on the bathroom rug. It led me to my brother's room, where I found my toothbrush under his bed. It turned out he had borrowed it to brush his toy dinosaur's teeth!

I was relieved to find my toothbrush and learned to always put my things back where they belong. Maybe I should get my brother his own dinosaur toothbrush!
